Pressing currents: a selection of new work by Hobie Porter

11 May - 31 July 2011

The Tweed River Art Gallery has scheduled this small display of Hobie Porter's new work to coincide with World Environment Day on Sunday 5 June 2011. Both the artist and the Gallery are pleased to participate in this globally significant event which seeks to focus world attention on the environment and recognise positive environmental programs and initiatives.

This presentation is also timely given the exhibition currently on display in the Friends Gallery which showcases a magnificent oil painting by artist Elioth Gruner titled Valley of the Tweed, created in 1921.

Currently on loan from the Art Gallery of NSW, this work offers a more traditional treatment of the picturesque landscape of the region. However, the works of both Gruner and Porter share a sense of grandeur and a meticulous attention to detail, and pay homage to the sublime.
